The Queen City will be down tonight from Pittsburgh.

The Avalon will attend to Pomeroy business tonight.

The Henry M. Stanley passed up for Pomeroy last night.

You may look for a rise in the river every month this year.

The Lizzie Bay will be the packet from Pomeroy tonight.

The Keystone State was up last night for Pittsburgh with a nice trip.

The Speedwell will be down tonight for Cincinnati from Portsmouth.

The Sam Brown and Crusier passed up with tows of Pittsburgh empties.

It seems that all the coal that could be handled on the present rise was rushed South.

There is no more Pittsburgh coal loaded, it having all been gotten out on the last water.

The Volunteer is coming from Pittsburgh with a tow of coal, wire nails and steel wire.

The Avalon had to refuse freight at this point the other day—she was blocked off when she arrived.

The Falls City took into Louisville the other day 200 hogheads of tobacco as one item of her vast cargo.

Last week the river was too low at Pittsburgh; this week it was too high; no telling what it will be next week.

The big towboats Smoky City, Jim Wood, Nellie Walton and Iron Age passed down with Pittsburgh coal for the South.

There is plenty of water for navigation, and the amount of freight being handled by the various packets is astonishing.

The work is progressing on the repairs being made to the big lock in the Monongahela river known as No. 2, and if nothing happens to retard the work boats will be locked through in about a week. The little lock is serving the river traffic. The river coal combine is assisting matters largely.

Captain James A. Henderson of the Pittsburgh and Cincinnati Packet Line is busily engaged in booking passengers for the annual Mardi Gras Festival at New Orleans. Pittsburgh passengers will be carried to Cincinnati on local packets and transferred to the handsome steamer New South. This will be the first time this arrangement has been in vogue, and packet owners anticipate a large traffic on the rivers during the Festival.

The Pittsburgh towboat Joseph B. Williams passed down with the largest tow by far that was ever brought down the Ohio river, and she has orders to add a good-sized tow to it at Cincinnati and go to Louisville, and then to New Orleans. The Williams is said to have thirty coalboats in her tow, and if nothing happens to prevent, she will have forty coalboats and two barges from Cincinnati to Louisville. This is not only the greatest tow ever handled on the Upper Ohio, but is probably the largest tow ever handled by any steamboat anywhere except by the Williams herself. Forty coalboats contain 1,000,000 bushels of coal, and a million bushels is equivalent to 25,000 tons. Figure out the trainloads, etc., yourself.

The Pittsburgh steamer Tom Rees, which passed this city Tuesday, had a tow of coal, in the middle of which were seven barges of steel rails. The John Moren is on her way down the river with seven barges of steel rails surrounded with coal barges, and another boat will leave Pittsburgh this week with a similar number of barges of steel rails protected in a similar way. Captain John Moren, General Manager of the Freight Department of the Monongahela River Consolidated Coal and Coke Company, said that when the Company has valuable cargoes to ship the barges of steel rails will be sandwiched in between coal barges in the middle of the tows, and there will be no more tows of steel rails exclusively. By handling the valuable freight in this manner it is expected that a great amount of money can be saved, for if a tow hits the bank or a bridge pier or other obstruction, the chances of sinking the valuable cargo will be greatly lessened if it is in the middle of the tow.

The discharge of Captain George W. Edgington for alleged violation of the navigation laws is no surprise to the hundreds of steamboat men who know and respect him. Captain Edgington was caught up on a technicality, and the boilers of the steamer Pearce are today, probably, far better than two-thirds of all the boilers on the river. The Pearce's boilers are absolutely new, but they were not made according to a new rule of the steamboat inspection service, the existence of which rule Captain Edgington was not aware of until after the boilers had been finished and used for some time. There are probably scores of boilers having punched rivet holes now in use on steamboats and they are passed every year by the very inspectors who condemned the Pearce's new boilers. Not that this is any reflection on the inspectors, however, for they are simply carrying out their instructions, but it is pretty hard on Captain Edgington to be made the "terrible example" when he was entirely innocent of any wrong intentions. He will have the Pearce out again, however, in about four weeks, with a new set of boilers, and she will continue to run in the Cincinnati and Portsmouth trade as an independent packet.

Persons who lead a life of exposure are subject to rheumatism, neuralgia and lambs, and find a valuable remedy in Ballard's Snow Liniment. It will banish pains and subdue inflammation. Price 25 and 50 cents. J. Jas. Wood & Son.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue will recommend the adoption of the resolution fixing the tax on leaf tobacco dealers at $12. The Commissioner finds that more revenue will result under that system of taxation than under the present system of taxing according to the amount of business transacted. There is a general demand among leaf tobacco dealers for the adoption of the resolution, as it does away with the keeping of itemized accounts, and in addition prevents the approximate business of the firm from being known to outsiders.
